

This regulation is issued by the University President pursuant to California Code of Regulations, Title 5, Sections 42350-42354, and CSU Executive Order 669, and concerns the use of University buildings and grounds for purposes of commercial transactions and commercial solicitation, non-commercial solicitation, the distribution of handbills and circulars, public meetings, performances, rallies, and similar campus events. This regulation applies to all members of the CSULB community including, but not limited to, students, student organizations, faculty, faculty organizations, staff, staff organizations, campus-affiliated organizations, and other off-campus groups or persons while on campus grounds, including commercial vendors or solicitors. This regulation controls CSULB's time, place, and manner restrictions on commercial transactions and solicitation, non-commercial transactions and solicitation, freedom of expression activities, amplified sound, and posting or chalking, including the distribution of handbills and circulars.

CSULB supports creative, thoughtful, and respectful discourse where conflicting perspectives are vigorously debated and thoroughly discussed. CSULB is dedicated to affording all members of the CSULB community the protections for free speech, expression, assembly, religion, and press available under the U.S. and California constitutions and all applicable federal and state laws, in accordance with the University's purpose and function except insofar as limitations on those freedoms are necessary to CSULB's functioning. It is not the proper role of the University to attempt to shield persons from ideas and opinions they find unwelcome, disagreeable, or even deeply offensive. Although CSULB greatly values civility, and although all members of the CSULB community share in the responsibility for maintaining a climate of mutual respect, concerns about civility and mutual respect are not a justification for closing discussions of ideas, however offensive or disagreeable those ideas may be. Yet, the University also has the duty to restrict expression that violates the law, falsely defames a specific individual, constitutes a genuine threat or harassment, unjustifiably invades substantial privacy and confidentiality interests, or is otherwise directly incompatible with the University's functioning. Additionally, CSULB may reasonably regulate the time, place and manner of expression on University property and over its communication systems to ensure the expression does not disrupt ordinary University functions and activities.

Although the CSULB community is free to criticize and contest views expressed on University property and over its communication systems, and to criticize and contest speakers invited to campus to express their views, they may not obstruct or otherwise interfere with the freedom of others to express their views, even if they reject or even loathe those views. Further, each member of the CSULB community shares the responsibility of maintaining conditions conducive to achieving CSULB's mission of teaching, research, and public service. The time, place and manner policy exists to protect and promote the rights of the CSULB community, prevent interference with CSULB's operations, functions and activities, and assure compliance with all applicable laws and CSULB policies and regulation.

The use of campus buildings, facilities, and grounds for any purpose is subject to the following:

1. All persons on University property are required to abide by University policies and regulations. Violation of University policies or regulations may subject a person to legal penalties. If the person is a CSULB student, faculty member or staff member, that person may also be subject to University discipline. Individuals on University property or in attendance at an official University function assume the obligation of conducting themselves in a manner compatible with the University's responsibilities as an educational institution.
